

Children's and Family Ministries in a Post Pandemic World

Fritz Kids in a Nutshell

all ministries will be accessible, regardless of internet and vaccination status

challenges to this:

- it's only temporary
- masks
- internet and chromebooks
- distrust of anything not in person
- non use of internet
- where's the money
- why pajamas

Lessons Learned in the Pandemic

grow a campus

clarity about what is important the need for connection is magnified wider circle

the larger picture is different

Response to Lessons

online campus stays

catalysts for good & healthy prayer lives as benchmarks must overplan for social connections

- screens on vs off
- those without email and text
- special needs

must consider what is happening outside of your time together

Lessons Learned on Zoom

chat box conundrums

fidgeting is different connection is made differently families are involved in the background silence is still needed

know your audience
and go into the depths of settings

wondering questions
in back pocket; both oral and visual

must plan for cooperative
experiences that are easily translated
online

ask the kids and families what matters

be prepared to build
in comfort in silence

What will continue

afterschool partnership multiple online offerings every week focused short-term offerings occasional ministry gatherings liturgical season connections weekly ministries that fill in the chinks

What my crew is loving

find the socks or anything to do with my house

multiage groupings and private chat options

sending me photos and texts throughout the week

old school games,
including madlibs

leading portions of sessions and creating
new clubs

prayer request time

What's coming down the pike (God willing)

- 1 Storytellers expanded
- 2 Afterschool homework club ministry
- 3 Literacy connection
- 4 Bus stop library and blessings
